PROFILE

Taylah has a broad commercial and property law practice. She is regularly briefed to appear (led and unled), provide advice, draw pleadings and prepare urgent applications. She accepts briefs in local, regional and interstate courts.

Her commercial practice includes disputes in relation to contracts, domestic building work, Corporations Act matters (e.g. oppression and breach of directors duties), Australian Consumer Law claims, loan agreements and sale of businesses.

Her property law practice includes retail and commercial leasing, sale of land, caveats, owners corporations, adverse possession, constructive and resulting trusts, and fencing.

Taylah trained as a Solicitor at Isakow Lawyers where she gained experience in the areas of commercial, property and family law. Prior to joining the Bar, she was an Associate to her Honour Judge Brimer who sits in the Commercial and Criminal Divisions of the County Court of Victoria, is Head of the Arbitration List and a Vice President at VCAT. She assisted her Honour in various commercial trials and interlocutory applications in Duty Court.

Taylah holds a Bachelor of Laws (Honours) and Bachelor of Arts from Monash University. She wrote an honours thesis considering reforms to the Bail Act 1977 (Vic) from a human rights perspective.

Taylah has extensive experience teaching law. She is the Chief Examiner and Lecturer of Evidence Law at Swinburne University. She has also tutored Property Law at Monash University and Australian Catholic University, and provided Practical Legal Training to Law Graduates at Herbert Smith Freehills.

Taylah regularly presents CPD seminars on substantive law topics such as retail leasing and director's duties, and ethics topics.

Taylah read with Nicole Papaleo and her senior mentor is Wendy Harris KC..
